Dynamic alt-pop quartet King No-One have taken the live scene by storm. Originally hailing from York, the band built up their live reputation with one blistering sold out show after another across the nations favourite small venues. After being received strongly in Manchester they decided to move into the heart of the city, and soon after, exploded as one of the biggest live emerging guitar bands in the country. Impressively the band sell out venues reserved for major label, radio 1 play-listed album artists - selling in excess of 8,000 tickets over two UK tours, every year. Their biggest show being their headline at O2 Ritz in Manchester.
