

Death pop kings from Bergen Norway, and now also Melbourne Australia, have kept it going since 2008 with deadly life-threatening rock songs and infectious dance floor bangers. Always dressed to kill in three stripes, Blood Command's live show is nothing short of soaring high karate kicks and non-stop chaotic energy.

Blood Command are set to release their 5th studio album, World Domination, on September 29th 2023, through Hassle and Loyal Blood Records.

Like various underground religious groups throughout history, Blood Command's ever growing following, The Awaketeam, is rising around the globe, and they are not stopping until total World Domination. So, keep your eyes peeled for purple shrouds and black and white sneakers.
