

American Singer/Songwriter Brookln Dekker, better known by his surname-moniker, Dekker, has released 3 albums Slow Reveal: Chapter One (2020), I Won't Be Your Foe (2022) & Future Ghosts (2024).

Collaborating with Berlin drummer, Stefan Wittich, as well as with mixing/mastering engineer Zach Hanson (Bon Iver, The Staves, Whitney) Dekker hones cohesive and clear indie-folk music.

Brookln has been on a roll since August of 2019 when we first heard his voice as Dekker. Three albums, an e.p. and a couple of hundred performances later, which, since the virus years, is a feat in itself; we find Dekker picking up speed and attention all across Europe.

Dekker grew up in the midwest of America and after 5 years of marriage to his English wife, and the other half of the pair's indie-folk band, Rue Royale, the couple picked up and moved to the U.K. seeing them tour the European continent extensively from 2008 through 2014. In 2017, after a family-expanding pause from the road, Brookln found himself making the record We Share Phenomena with old friend Lambert. This whetted his appetite for writing and performing again which led to In Parallel (2018) for Rue Royale before branching out to begin his journey into the land of Dekker in 2019.
